

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

AGENCY EVOC TRAINING PROGRAM

Build the emergency vehicle operations program that works for your department. Trilogy provides the infrastructure — instructors, field preceptors, provider training, refreshers and the culture of safety behind all of it — and your department decides how much of it to use.

$2,995 per three-year term · U.S. DOT National Standard Curriculum · Taught by Trilogy EMS for 15 years

Not an all-or-nothing training model

Most training offers ask an organization to adopt someone else's model. This one does not. The Agency EVOC Training Program puts an entire emergency vehicle operations training infrastructure inside your department, and your department determines what to use and how it fits the program you already run.

Use one component. Use all of them.

Keep your own driving course and use ours for the academics. Keep the refresher you already run and use ours for remediation after an event. Teach the Provider course exactly the way you teach it now. Nothing here requires your organization to dismantle something that works — your department retains control of its program, and every resource is available whether you use one or all of them.

What your department receives

Component	What it gives your organization
Three (3) EVOC Instructor seats	The Trilogy EVOC Instructor Course, delivered online. Your instructors are certified to teach the full EVOC Provider Course to your personnel, including the behind-the-wheel practical, in your own vehicles and on your own schedule. 24 CEUs. Certification valid three years.
Six (6) Emergency Vehicle Operations Field Preceptor seats	The layer between the classroom and the street. Preceptors ride with a new hire or probationary employee and watch them drive; this course prepares them to coach that driver and carry the culture of safety into the field. It is not an instructor course — it develops the coach. Delivered online, with field evaluation instruments your agency can adapt.
Unlimited EVOC Provider seats	The U.S. DOT National Standard Curriculum, Emergency Vehicle Operator Course. Academics online in your portal; the behind-the-wheel practical delivered in person by your own certified instructors. Assign it to a new hire in orientation or run your entire organization through it. No tuition per student.
Unlimited EVOC Refresher seats	Two refresher courses, both fully online — an eight-hour and a four-hour. Your organization chooses which fits and runs it as often as it deems necessary: scheduled refresher training across the roster, remediation after an event, or an additional training tool whenever you need one. No instructor required.
Unlimited Culture of Safety for Emergency Vehicle Operations seats	Fully online, 5 CEUs, seven modules built for the cab: why operators crash, emergency-mode judgment, intersections, the cab as a cockpit, fitness to drive, just culture behind the wheel, and building the agency driving program. No instructor required.
Your own agency portal on the Trilogy Schoolhouse	"[Your Agency] Schoolhouse, powered by Trilogy." Your administrator adds personnel, assigns seats, follows progress, and prints student and roster completion reports on demand — every completion logged and dated, so your organization can show what it trained and when.

How organizations actually use it

- Instructors only. Some organizations want certified instructors and nothing else. They use the three seats, teach their own course their own way, and leave the rest of the portal alone.

- Academics plus your own driving program. Run the Provider academics online, then take your people to your own course, in your own apparatus, with your own standards for the practical.
- Refresher only. Something for the whole roster every year, and something to put a driver through after an event. Assign it and it is done.
- Culture of safety alone. Some run this department-wide by itself, because it is the piece nobody else is teaching.
- The whole structure. Instructors teaching, preceptors coaching, providers trained, refreshers cycling — one program your organization owns end to end.

The terms

- $2,995 per three-year term. One payment covers the full term. No annual fee, and no per-student tuition for your own employees, members or enrolled students.
- Additional and replacement instructors at $375 — half price. Build your instructor cadre beyond the initial three, replace anyone who leaves, or renew a certification at the three-year mark, at $375 per instructor. That is 50% off the standing rate, held for the full term.
- 20% off other Trilogy courses. Because your organization holds a Schoolhouse portal, it receives 20% off bulk seat purchases in Trilogy's other courses for the life of the term. Available whether or not you use it.
- Renewal. At the end of the term the program renews at current pricing on all of the same terms. The decision is yours, and so is Trilogy's.
- Instructor certifications. Valid three years. They belong to the instructor, but they authorize teaching only for the organization that sponsored them — a certification does not transfer to a new employer.
- Continuing education. The Instructor Course carries 24 CEUs and Culture of Safety carries 5. NREMT accepts them for recertification; state acceptance varies.

Who qualifies

Fire departments, EMS agencies (public or private), colleges and EMS education programs, government and hospital-based EMS — within the United States, training their own personnel or enrolled students. Not available to third-party or commercial training providers.

About the program

Trilogy Emergency Medical Solutions is a veteran-owned emergency services training company founded in 2010. Trilogy has taught the Emergency Vehicle Operator Course, built on the U.S. DOT National Standard Curriculum, for fifteen years — one of the largest EVOC providers in the state of Florida at the provider level, and a provider of instructor-level courses across the United States and internationally. The curriculum is reviewed and updated annually, so your organization always teaches the current version. Trilogy is not a training center for any outside organization and delivers no one else's curriculum; every course in the Schoolhouse is Trilogy's own.

How to establish your program
